

A positive injected signal can create nearby peaks and deficits

Injection-induced change after subtracting the background response

Two positive injections can produce an intervening fitted deficit

